Reference No. 6.27

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES, NOVEMBER 1974

MAIN FEATURES

- In November 1974 there were 216 industrial disputes involving 75,400 employees and resulting in the loss of 161,800 working days.
- The number of working days lost in November was the lowest since October 1972 except for the months of December and January when the level of disputes is generally much lower than for other months.
- The main stoppages occurred in air transport when pilots stopped work in support of salary increases; and in coal mining in New South Wales (demarcation dispute) and Queensland (protest against dismissal).

EXPLANATORY NOTES

This bulletin contains statistics of industrial disputes for the month of November 1974 and some previous periods. More information about these disputes will appear later in the detailed quarterly mimeograph Industrial Disputes (Reference No. 6.6).

2. The statistics of industrial disputes are compiled according to the Australian Standard Industrial Classification (ASIC), described in the Bureau publication Australian Standard Industrial Classification (Preliminary Edition), 1969, Vol. 1. Statistics on this basis for the years 1968 to 1972 are published in Labour Report No. 57, 1972 (Reference No. 6.7) and the March quarter 1973 bulletin (Reference No. 6.6).

3. The statistics of industrial disputes refer only to disputes involving stoppages of work of ten man-days or more. Workers involved include workers directly and indirectly involved in disputes. Workers indirectly involved are employees thrown out of work at the establishments where the stoppages occurred but not themselves parties to the dispute. Particulars of some stoppages (e.g. those involving a large number of establishments) may be estimated and the statistics therefore should be regarded as giving a broad measure of the extent of stoppages of work (as defined).

4. Stoppages of work occurring at different times and at different establishments but due to the same cause may be regarded as one industrial dispute. However, an industrial dispute occurring in more than one State is counted as a separate dispute in each State. A dispute involving workers in more than one industry in a State or Territory is counted only once in the number of disputes — in the industry that has the largest number of workers involved; but workers involved, working days lost and estimated loss in wages are allocated to their respective industries. Disputes not settled at the end of a year are included as new disputes in the figures for the following year. The monthly statistics refer to all disputes operative in the month, including those disputes that commenced in previous months. In Table 1 details of the number of disputes and workers involved are shown separately for disputes beginning in the month and for all disputes. Any discrepancies between totals and sums of components are due to rounding.

5. For statistics of industrial disputes for earlier periods see Labour Report No. 57, 1972 (Reference No. 6.7).
